It is indeed a matter of great prestige that the Journal of Obstetrics and Gynaecology of India is publishing this December 1998 issue as a special issue on “FOGSI GUIDELINES”.

There are rapid advances taking place in our speciality by leaps and bounds from time to time. The practising Obstetrician & Gynaecologist and even the family physician has to be abreast with the advancing knowledge.

This is an attempt to give our FOGSI members highlights in managing some common Obstetric and Gynaecological conditions met within their practice.

Prof. Dr. R. Rajan, President of FOGSI (1998) mooted the idea of “FOGSI GUIDELINES”, and requested some of our FOGSI leading experts to contribute their views on managing some common problems in obstetrics and Gynaecology, from their mature experience.

I hope this special issue will be of immense help to both the practising Obstetrician and Gynaecologist and family physician especially in mofusil area, and will prove to be a good reference book in their busy schedule.
